Campus Police Prepared for More Anti-CIA Picketing by Students

University of Iowa campus police today are preparing for continued student picketing of a building where a Central Intelligence Agency representative is interviewing job applicants, but they "expect nothing big." Minor incidents developed Wednesday afternoon when foul names were shouted from the picket line of student pacifists in the second day of demonstrations. Campus officers took the name of one picket, identified	as Ross J. Peterson, a freshman from Des Moines. A policeman said Peterson called him an obscene name. Campus Security Director John H. Hanna said he planned to place two extra-duty officers at the scene this afternoon. "We are preparing for a certain amount of trouble, but we expect nothing big," he added. Meanwhile, CIA recruiter Charles Pechovsky continued	interviewing students interested in working with the CIA. Wednesday he returned to a temporary building near Gilmore Hall after being forced to seek official aid when he opened the interviews Tuesday. About 30 or so demonstrators created a sit-in Tuesday in the Business and Industrial Placement Office, but with Wednesday's frigid weather, the number dwindled to not more than 20 and all were forced to re-	main outside the barracks building. The interviews are to continue through Friday. Iowa Senators Oppose Antifilibuster Revision WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Sens. Bourke Hickenlooper and Jack Miller of Iowa helped defeat a move to revise the Senate antifilibuster rule Wednesday. The vote against revision was 61-37.	A student outburst came Wednesday when police carried inside the building a couple of picket signs that had been leaned against the door. Some of the signs read "Kick the CIA off the Campus," "Fascist Dogs" and "If You Have Killing on the Mind, Join CIA." The university maintained a hands-off policy, saying that the CIA had the same right as any other hiring agency to use job placement facilities.
